Collaborative, interdisciplinary community-based research to promote the health of Kansans and enhance primary care

KPPEPR Board of Directors

Kent Culbertson, BBM
Shirley Dinkel, PhD, APRN-BC
Gary C. Doolittle, MD
Lynn Fisher, MD
Chrysanne Grund, BS
Jennifer McKenney, MD, FAAFP
Robert Moser, MD
Jenny Niblock, MSN, APRN-C
Leah Peterson, MD
Krista Postai, BS
Ivonne Rivera-Newberry, BSN, RN
Beverly Tipton, MSW, BSN, RN
Mari Tucker, MBA, BS

KPPEPR Staff

Allen Greiner, MD, MPH
Medical Director
Sara Douglas, MSN, RN, OCN
Network Manager

KPPEPR is registered with the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

“For research to be meaningful to practices, it needs to occur in real-life practice settings.”

Hope Krebill, MSW, BSN, RN
Midwest Cancer Alliance Executive Director

Care
Collaborate
Lead
Excel

Kansas Patients and Providers Engaged in Prevention Research

KPPEPR
Examples of Previous KPPEPR Research Topics

- Obesity treatment in rural primary care practices
- Disease management for smokers in rural primary care
- Tailored colorectal cancer screening reminders in rural primary care
- Use of implementation strategies to promote colorectal cancer screening in rural primary care
- Relationship between social capital and end-of-life care in rural areas
- Provider burnout among rural healthcare providers
- Implementing cancer survivorship curriculum and care plans in rural primary care settings

Responsibilities of KPPEPR Members

- Register with KPPEPR program staff
- Complete membership survey
- Consider participation in new research projects
- Consider attending KPPEPR annual conferences and other networking opportunities

Why KPPEPR?

Show that rural and underserved communities can have high quality healthcare.

Learn how other Kansas communities are dealing with healthcare challenges.

In the age of shrinking healthcare resources, research often means resources.

Through interdisciplinary collaboration, KPPEPR-supported research reflects what matters to communities so that research leads to resources and improved well-being.

Be recognized as a leader in your community and among your peers.

“Collaboration is the key to transforming healthcare. KPPEPR’s inter-professional approach has put Kansas on the map as a leader in practice-based research.”

Allen Greiner, MD, MPH
KPPEPR Medical Director

How to Join the KPPEPR Network

Please visit our website www.midwestcanceralliance.org/KPPEPR or contact kppepr@kumc.edu for a membership survey.